

Nick Ajderian

agile:Adapt Partner

Nick graduated from Imperial College, London, in Mechanical Engineering in 1982. He worked at Rolls-Royce as a production engineer in the carbon fibre department, then left to join an industry-university partnership at UWIST and Renold Chain in Cardiff where he also gained an MSc.

Following a period working with electro-mechanical testing systems, Nick went to work at Bath University, studying the application of genetic algorithms to gearbox design: the system he wrote was in Visual Basic.

In 1994, Nick set up Hattjoys IT Ltd (now named Flikk). Clients included Bath and North East Somerset District Council, Department For Transport, the Vehicle Certification Agency and Hewlett Packard.

Mark Garrett, our Product Director started working with Nick in 2000, when Nick offered him part-time work for Hattjoys, while Mark studied on his conversion Masters Degree in IT. Nick then started assisting with the development of Chilli software, which Mark started work on in 2003, and has been involved with Mark and Chilli ever since.

Nick now takes the lead in supporting two of our Chilli clients. He's also worked with the agileBase platform, including working with integration with other software.
