

Richard Wilson

agile:Adapt Partner

Following a PhD in Engineering, Richard began his career in software at Dezrez.com, growing the company from 1 employee to well over 100 over the 15 years he was there.

During that time he oversaw the development of multiple new products, the creation of an SOA platform product ('Rezi' - the total replacement of the core legacy product) and selected and/or developed many internal systems.

Branching out on his own he has since been involved with various development projects, many involving Food Manufacturers.

At agileChilli he was core to the development team in helping us “productise” our version of agile:NPDtech and in the creation of our second product, agile:SA.

Richard is a Master agileBase Platform Developer and supports numerous IT departments with bespoke aB installations.
